Re: Case #2013-00332

I wish to express my opposition to the announced intentions of AmeriGas to discontinue our current gas service and replace it with individual residential tanks.

Old Bridge subdivision has a collective tank system that is not very old and is functioning well. I have discussed this matter with several residents and have found no one who has had complaints regarding our current system.

I find the intentions of AmeriGas suspect, as the proposed new system will impose additional fees on all residents of Old Bridge, fees which we have already paid to have the current gas system installed. It seems as if the neighborhood is being penalized for the benefit of AmeriGas.

The current gas lines into homes are buried. The current deed restrictions of Old Bridge do not allow burial of gas tanks on individual properties. So, am I to understand that because of this change, I will have to purchase a tank, have it installed on my property, incur the expense of someone routing the gas lines to my appliances/fireplaces, to accommodate AmeriGas? Common sense dictates that it is more efficient to service one tank, than 140 tanks on individual properties!

I would appreciate being notified of any public hearing. Thank you for your consideration.
